

George Gordon was born in Dundee Scotland in 1958, and is now living in Calgary, Alberta.

He is a watercolour painter who believes that the watercolour medium chose him

“I vividly remember as a small boy in Scotland I was fascinated by the watercolour paintings in my children’s books. I was always drawing from an early age, but I did not attempt a watercolour painting until I was almost 50 years old. However, when I did, I immediately knew that this medium suited my personality, as it allowed me to paint very quickly and express my feelings for the subject. My love for watercolour continues to drive me forward and now that I am recently retired from my career with the City I look forward to devoting more time than ever pursuing my passion for this wonderful medium and sharing my knowledge and love for it with others.

I have given many demos and workshops over the past 15 years and I’m always thrilled when people are inspired to try painting watercolours.
